| iFly Singapore                          | iFly Singapore is a first of its kind in the world themed indoor skydiving facility launched in 2011. Located in Sentosa, the state-of-the-art wind tunnel allows anyone, from first-time flyers to professional skydivers, the opportunity to fly in an easily accessible, realistic, safe and affordable setting. At a height of 56.5ft with a diameter of 16.5ft, iFly Singapore is the world's largest themed wind tunnel and can accommodate up to 20 professional flyers at any one time. iFly Singapore has been rebranded to AltitudeX Indoor Skydiving as of 7 Nov 2025.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Henderson Waves                         | Henderson Waves is a 274m-long pedestrian bridge with a unique wave-like structure. This wood-panelled bridge is the tallest pedestrian bridge in Singapore and was built to improve connectivity between the nature areas along the Southern Ridges. A series of seven undulating “ribs” double up as alcoves and provide shelter to park users looking for rest.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Bird Paradise                           | Spanning 17 hectares, Bird Paradise is one of Asia's largest bird parks, home to more than 3,500 birds from over 400 species. Immerse in a symphony of colours across its eight large walk-through aviaries, each reflecting distinct biomes from around the world — from the dense rainforests of Africa to South American wetlands and Southeast Asian paddy fields.
