

Pro Bono SG

Pro Bono SG (UEN No. 201700430E) is a registered charity with the status of Institution of a Public Character and a company limited by guarantee. It started as a department within The Law Society of Singapore and later became Law Society Pro Bono Services. Since 2007, we've expanded our legal initiatives and programs, helping over 150,000 people with legal awareness, guidance, and representation.

In FY 25/26, we helped over 16,600 individuals and community organisations. Our volunteer base has grown to 2,900 registered volunteers from various industries and specialisations.

To improve our services, Pro Bono SG works closely with community partners. Thanks to the support from our partners and supporters, we were renamed to Pro Bono SG in 2022 to reflect the commitment of everyone in Singapore to our mission of doing good in the community.

Community Development Councils

The Community Development Councils (CDCs) were established in 1997 to build a tightly knit, compassionate and self-reliant community. The CDCs share the PA's objectives of fostering community bonding and building social cohesion amongst the people of Singapore. They work closely with grassroots organisations, government agencies, voluntary welfare organisations and corporate partners to strengthen the social fabric of Singapore.

Through the CDCs, residents can forge strong community bonds, enabling the more able and successful to come forward to help the vulnerable in society. The five CDCs are Central Singapore CDC, North-East CDC, North-West CDC, South-East CDC and South-West CDC.

The CDCs' mission is to build a Caring and Cohesive Community, where we Assist the Needy, Bond the people, Connect the Community

National University of Singapore, Faculty of Law, Centre for Pro Bono & Clinical Education

The Centre for Pro Bono & Clinical Legal Education is the central body that oversees and runs pro bono programmes and the clinical legal education programme at NUS Law. The Centre's activities have their roots in the rich tradition of pro bono work among staff and students.

Among its key objectives, the Centre seeks to develop and enhance legal skills in NUS Law students, particularly in community lawyering, and to build legal awareness programmes primarily targeted at the social service sector so as to strengthen legal assistance that can be provided to such organisations that promote the welfare of the vulnerable in society.

In doing so, the Centre aims to prepare NUS Law students for real-world practice by exposing them to the challenges of delivering quality legal service while serving the community.

Singapore Management University, Pro Bono Centre

As a stakeholder of Singapore's justice system, the Singapore Management University (SMU) Pro Bono Centre has advocated a pro bono culture amongst law students through various pro bono programmes ever since the founding of the SMU Yong Pung How School of Law in 2007.

In 2013, the Centre started a free legal clinic to enhance access to justice for disadvantaged members of public and the training of law students. The clinic has since grown from a fortnightly service to a weekly service in 2017.

Through a wide range of programmes, the Centre aims to help law students gain a deeper understanding of the needs of our society and the less privileged and cultivate in them a sense of service – of what it means to give without expecting anything in return.

Singapore University of Social Sciences, School of Law

The SUSS School of Law's primary focus is to support the nation's efforts to train and produce first-rate practitioners in the areas of criminal law and family practice.

Accordingly, our LLB and JD programmes adopt a pedagogical approach that emphasises problem-solving, by splicing the learning of substantive law with practice-oriented application.

Exposure to cross-disciplinary fields, as well as opportunities for all students to engage meaningfully with members of both the Bar and the Judiciary, ensure that our graduates enter the profession primed for practice not just with the foundational knowledge and skills, but also a keen sense of purpose.

About Ministry of Law and SGLaw200

The Ministry of Law advances access to justice, the rule of law, the economy and society through policy, law and services.

This year, we mark SGLaw200 – 200 years since Singapore’s modern judicial and legal system was established via the Second Charter of Justice in 1826. Our legal system is the foundation of the Rule of Law, which is a fundamental principle underpinning Singapore’s development. It has driven our economic growth, maintained racial and religious harmony, and supported our key social policies.

SGLaw200 reiterates our commitment to the Rule of Law, and commemorates the past, present and future of Singapore’s legal system. A trusted legal system, a trusted Singapore.
